

S&P 500 BREAKOUT OR FAKE OUT?

By Blake Robben (Aug 22)

It's official. As of August 22, the U.S. stock market has registered the longest bull market in history. This milestone has taken place in spite of, or maybe because of, record debt levels in all sectors; government, corporate and household. In light of this unprecedented debt load, along with the Federal Reserve's pursuit of policy normalization AND an ongoing trade war with China, what could possibly go wrong? Price action is never wrong. Opinions often are and currently price action is still saying higher. Don't get sidetracked by placing too much emphasis on economic reports, political commentary and don't be worried about the October blood red moon. Instead key off the 2811 BULL-BEAR LINE!!! GOOD DAY AND TRADE WELL MY FRIENDS!!!
