MARKET IMPLICATIONS

In spite of this report coming in slightly below estimates, the Federal Open Market Committee remains on track to increase its fed funds rate by 25 basis points to a range of between 2.00% to 2.25% at its September 26 policy meeting.

In addition to the likely September rate hike, the FOMC may also increase rates again in December.

Stock Index futures are holding up well in spite of the moderately weaker GDP report, which should be viewed as a sign of strength.
